With Age Comes Wisdom ... With Shino Bay Comes Youth!

Shino Bay Cosmetic Dermatology & Laser Institute

There is no need to fly to NYC or Beverly Hills! Dr. Shino Bay Aguilera is one of the top 5 injectors for Sculptra in the entire United States (and in fact often the #1 Volume Injector in USA)! He is also a Top Platinum Level master injector of Botox and fillers for Allergan Sculptra when done well can easily erase decades off your apparent age and you will look as young as you feel. Whether you are 35 or 85 years old, the results can be dramatic providing a youthful, symmetric, invigorated look.

Sculptra is different from the other dermal fillers in that it is not a gel or other substance that is injected to erase a specific wrinkle or fold. Sculptra works entirely by stimulating the body to create its own new collagen. When done correctly, this creates a more gradual and very natural increase in facial volume, which is why it is so popular among celebrities. People will comment on how great & young you look but never realize that you have had anything done because the increase and improvement although dramatic is gradual and natural. Each day that passes will result in additional collagen synthesis. You are apparently "growing younger."

The new collagen synthesis will cause the skin to reflect more light which gives skin an overall more youthful and rested appearance without anyone knowing you had any treatment at all! The effect is realized at about at about week 8 after injection with improvements continuing up to 6 months. This is a very long lasting filler of up to 2 years. Another huge benefit is that this product fights against demineralization that so many aging women begin to have around the mouth that cause the chin to become receded and pointy. On men, the jaw reduces a little due to bone loss and the cheek bones flatten. The skin is then unable to accommodate for the volume loss and drapes near the jaw. In addition, superficial fat accumulates in this area causing distortion of the lower face and jaw line.

Dr. Shino Bay Aguilera masterfully administers Sculptra to recreate the masculine jaw that the years have diminished or adds a more masculine jaw line that genetics simply did not create. For women, he can resculpt the softness and roundness of the jaw line and build it back up to a plump round, youthful volume and tightening the loose skin in this area. Like a master artist sculpts, Dr. Aguilera will recreate the younger looking masculine or feminine jaw and youthful face that the years have diminished. Celebrities and our patients alike have discovered the wonderfully, unique benefits of Sculptra!

Dr. Shino Bay Aguilera is one of the world's renowned Cosmetic Dermatologist, Dermatological Surgeon, Cosmetic Laser Expert, and is Dual Board certified with a Fellowship in Dermatology from the American College of Osteopathic Dermatology. With over 14 years of ongoing advanced training in laser and Aesthetics. He is a clinical researcher, publisher, an Assistant Professor of Dermatology, Laser and Aesthetics for five universities and the top requested International physician trainer and Keynote speaker for one of the world's leading laser manufacturers and a master of artfully administering cosmetic injectables also incorporating over 25 of the world's constantly upgraded leading edge, premier, laser & cosmetic technologies to optimize your results.

Beautiful, inside and out. (Like you.)

Introducing a new kind of women's center.

It's state-of-the-art women's healthcare. And kind of a work-of-art in itself. The new Lillian S. Wells Women's Health Center is beautifully designed for one purpose only: keeping women healthy, inside and out.

And while it may look and feel like a spa, it's staffed by renowned women's healthcare specialists, and equipped with today's most advanced diagnostic and treatment equipment.

Services include:

- Breast MRI and digital mammography
- Bone density screening
- Cardiac assessment and screening
- Gynecological services
- Support groups
- Therapeutic massage
- Cosmetic services

This isn't just a new women's healthcare center. It's a new kind of healthcare center — one that treats the whole woman, not just individual symptoms. Its focus is on helping women lead healthy, happy, fulfilling lives.

Call 954.759.7400 for a physician referral.

Keeping Up on Riverwalk

With our three months of signature events behind us — the Riverwalk Trust Tribute, Get Downtown and Burger Battle — we now have our general events to get us through the summer.

A June wine dinner was hosted by Himmarshee Bar & Grille featuring a German winemaker and provided the opportunity to learn about his vineyards. We have a special Members Only Summer Kick-off event scheduled for July 13 and our next Mutts and Martinis event coming in the fall. Check out www.GoRiverwalk.com for details.

With our goal of activating the Riverwalk, following is a wrap up of events that have taken place or will take place on the Riverwalk:

- On May 18, Mayor Jack Seiler delivered the State of the City Address along the Riverwalk beside the historic New River Inn.

- On May 20, the Marine Industry Cares Foundation produced the third annual Spin-a-thon at Esplanade Park along the Riverwalk. More than $100,000 was raised for Kids in Distress. The event drew a diverse crowd from throughout the community.

- On June 3, we hosted the national Top Chef Road Show competition with an even draw between the two competing chefs.

- Events happening weekly include the Riverwalk Trust Urban Market, every Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. With a new market manager, the Urban Market is transitioning with more vendors added each week.

- Also meeting weekly is Riverwalk Trust's @ Riverwalk health series. Every Tuesday, Yoga with Ali Hecht takes place in Esplanade Park (across from the Museum of Discovery & Science) from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. For additional information, call 954-732-0517.

The City of Fort Lauderdale has issued Riverwalk Trust an annual permit, thereby allowing us to host events on the Riverwalk. If you or your organization is interested in producing an event on the Riverwalk, contact me directly at Chair@GoRiverwalk.com. We're happy to have you help us activate the Riverwalk.

Top Chef Serves Up Healthy Match along the Riverwalk

NBC/Bravo arrived in Fort Lauderdale in June and brought us the famous Top Chef Summer Road Tour Competition.

In partnership with the DDA, the Riverwalk Trust hosted the event in Huizenga Plaza to a standing-room only crowd. Using local celebrity judges, Chefs Tiffany Deery and Kenny Griffin went head to head to compete and ended up in a draw in Fort Lauderdale — showing that our community loves food and the diversity of the styles! We hope they will remember the good time here next year as they plan the next tour. Fort Lauderdale was one of 21 cities nationally to host this competition.

Riverwalk also hosted Spin-A-Thon, this year sponsored by Marine Industry Cares Foundation to benefit Kids in Distress. This fun and successful event has become a much-anticipated challenge each year and is a growing and popular event. Many thanks to all of the partners, teams and sponsors that participated and assured this success.

This is a great opportunity to thank our partners, Premier Beverage and Himmarshee Bar & Grille, for hosting our June wine dinner and featuring some outstanding wines from the vineyards of Fritz Keller.

With summer here, there will be other happenings Downtown and on the beach and we hope that our residents and visitors take the time to enjoy the many cool things that are offered!

Burger Battle II

Presented by Publix Apron's Cooking School

Photography by Scott Barfield

Riverwalk Trust recently hosted Fort Lauderdale's second annual Burger Battle Presented by Publix Apron's Cooking School in Downtown Fort Lauderdale. Some of the city's top restaurants competed, showcasing their creativity and grilling skills to a sold-out crowd of 1,100 guests.

Bragging rights went to Georgie's Alibi, Wilton Manors, for the judges' choice for Best Burger in Fort Lauderdale while ROK: BRGR took home Fan Favorite honors.

Local residents gathered for an evening of gourmet burger creations, a French fry bar, a local celebrity slider eating contest sponsored by Krystal, cocktails and fun, while raising funds to support the Riverwalk Trust's mission of building and nurturing a vibrant community connected by the New River. The night was a huge success with $40,000 raised for the Riverwalk Trust.

Special thanks to our judges, Renée and Mike Quinn, the Burger Battle committee members, event Chair Brad Minto, America's Backyard, the event sponsors, participating restaurants, volunteers, George Gadson, Stiles, and the team at Riverside Hotel.

Downtown Fort Lauderdale

Expansion plans for the Broward Center for the Performing Arts

If These Streets Could Talk

A while back, I had an interview with Downtown Fort Lauderdale and found it to be quite captivating. Recently, I had the chance to catch up with the Downtown Dude again and here's what he had to say ...

Hey Downtown, what really puts mortar between your bricks?

The fact that new businesses are moving in all the time and the business community is turning into a broader corporate market. Also, all the expansions and renovations are exciting to witness: the new County courthouse, the Museum of Art's entrance renovation, the Museum of Discovery and Science's expansion and the expansion of the Broward Center for Performing Art, as well as the resurgence of my backbone, Las Olas Boulevard. I am not finished growing and these makeovers are important to keeping me refreshed and better able to accommodate my increasing amount of visitors.

What are the greatest opportunities right now in Downtown?

Stranahan Park. Stranahan is our historic, cypress tree oasis in the heart of downtown. There is a beautiful strand of cypress trees there that is unique to downtown, a pagoda for live entertainment and our historic and beautifully updated Woman's Club. Not to mention, the park is the doorstep of the Main Library and near many major office buildings. What should be the perfect spot for a midday picnic is currently an intimidating place for many of my office workers and residents. Stranahan is now known more for being the place where the homeless congregate, rather than a park for all to enjoy. Our community is dedicated to improving the homeless situation. We need to find a way to reinvigorate the park's status as a center for our downtown and community. In fact, I am currently working on a concept with Gale Butler, Genia Ellis and Terry Rynard.

What's something most people don't know about you?

I'm waiting to be discovered. Not many people outside Fort Lauderdale know what kind of dedicated, good-natured people make up this community. When I think of all their hard work and dedication toward making me a better place, I get goose bumps. Another thing people might not know about me is all the impressive commercial office space available. I am home to the most upscale office suites in Broward County, with views that will take your breath away. All at once you can see the ocean, Hallandale and Miami's skyscrapers, the BankAtlantic Center out west, trains going by, yachts making their way down the New River, and the air and seaports. Speaking of which, something also often lost on people is how close I am to both the international airport and seaport.

Well, you've certainly been discovered by the film industry. It seems there's something new filming every week!

Well, that may be true, but this is just the beginning. I'd like to see the trend continue before I can comment on my film career. I'm in it for the Oscar! GO

Julia Perlowski's students gather around her after she learns she is the 2011 Broward County Arts Teacher of the Year.

Arts and Civic Engagement

"To encourage literature and the arts is a duty which every good citizen owes to his country."

George Washington

George Washington calls it duty, this engagement in the arts. Recently, Julia Perlowski, director of theater programs and an English and reading instructor at Pompano Beach High School became the 2011 Broward County Arts Teacher of the Year. She was recognized for her duty to "encourage literature and the arts" at Pompano Beach High School. Perlowski will be honored on Oct. 19 at the Broward Center for the Performing Arts. She will receive a cash stipend, a scholarship to Nova Southeastern University, a Tiffany crystal apple, an inscribed brick on Riverwalk and an assortment of gifts from cultural organizations and businesses. Mostly, she will receive the satisfaction of fulfilling a service to her country, a service that affects the very nature of the community within which she lives.

Every year, this unique Broward County program showcases the artistic excellence of students and faculty throughout the county schools. Through a partnership among Broward Cultural Division, the Cultural Foundation of Broward and generous private sector donors, the School Board of Broward County and Broward Center for the Performing Arts, the Broward County Arts Teacher of the Year Program highlights an exceptional arts teacher and provides an educational and career development opportunity for arts students to gain valuable experience performing in a high quality, professional institution.

"Julia Perlowski is one of those rare teachers who not only manages to get her students to produce at their highest levels in English, reading and drama classrooms, she spends all of her free time finding new opportunities to improve herself at national and international levels and to bring back and share her skills and knowledge with colleagues and students in her high school and home county," said Hudson Thomas, principal of Pompano Beach High School.

Some of Perlowski's outstanding efforts include creating a Shakespeare program at the high school that began in 2006 with "A Midsummer Night's Dream," mentoring the Teen Trendsetter Reading Program in which low performing teenage reading students read to low performing second and third grade readers, enabling students to interview arts activists in the community and teaching them how to become arts advocates, and instructing teachers and students in India and Mongolia how to be arts ambassadors.

It seems a difficult time to be a teacher in Broward County. If teachers can encourage civic engagement and duty through theater, pastels, books and musical instruments in an invitation to activism, then it seems a worthwhile time to be a teacher in Broward County.

Join us on Wednesday, Oct. 19, at 6 p.m. at the Broward Center for the Performing Arts, Amaturio Theater. To RSVP, go to www.broward.org/arts and click on Events. GO

Wilton Manors

Eclectic Neighborhood Offers Something for Everyone

By Maggie Gunther
Photography by Jason Leidy

Are you ready to explore mouthwatering restaurants, beautiful waterways, quaint neighborhoods, funky shops and nightlife hotspots? If so, take a quick 10-minute drive from downtown Fort Lauderdale to Wilton Manors.

Beginning as a Fort Lauderdale neighborhood development in the early 1920s, today the city is world famous for its diverse, vibrant community and is a friendly, accepting haven for people of all sexual orientations. Wilton Manors is also known as “The Island City” because its boundaries are primarily branches of the Middle River. On a weekend, you’ll see kayakers and boaters out on the river and canals, which connect to the Intracoastal Waterway.

Wilton Drive, the city’s pedestrian-friendly “main street,” is lined with restaurants, shops, bars, offices and luxury housing and has something for everyone. If you’re hunting for bargains, visit the Out of the Closet thrift store on Wilton Drive and the Poverello Center, recently relocated to Dixie Highway south of Five Points, or Worth Repeating consignment shop on 26th Street. For authentic Japanese sushi, with sassy names like the “Gaysha” roll, check out Sozo. Love Thai? Try Galanga, Siam Cuisine and Tasty Thai. A taste of the South just moved in with Rodeo on Wilton Drive which specializes in Tex-Mex, barbecue and Cajun-Creole. Sip a glass of wine at the Naked Grape wine bar. Feed your sweet tooth with ice cream treats at the walk-up Dairy Queen (a favorite for nearby Fort Lauderdale High School students) or try the rose-flavored gelato at Gelato Station. Delight in nostalgic candies at To The Moon.

Three local bars each provide a trifecta of dining, entertainment and nightlife. Rosie’s Grill, The Manor and Georgie’s Alibi have drink specials, gourmet menus and live entertainment.

The Manor and Georgie’s also double as nightclubs, and all three hold themed parties for various events and holidays.

The city is also home to long-established businesses such as Barton & Miller Cleaners, located at the Five Points intersection, and to one of the only bowling alleys in east Broward, Manor Lanes. Manor Lanes features weekly karaoke, as does New Moon and Red’s Bar, a longtime watering hole for Manors residents.

Mark your calendar for the Taste of the Island, an annual food and libation event that is not to be missed. This year’s Taste will be held Nov. 7 at the Richardson Historic Park and Preserve on Wilton Drive and is held in partnership with the City of Wilton Manors, the Wilton Manors Historical Society, Wilton Manors Main Street, Friends of the Library and the Kiwanis Club of Wilton Manors.

Throughout the year, the city hosts large-scale events such as the Stonewall Street Festival, held this past June. The festival is one of many similar events around the nation, name for a Manhattan nightclub, which in June 1969, was the site of an uprising of gay patrons against police who had repeatedly terrorized them.

Stonewall and other events in town celebrate gay pride – but as you’ll learn in Wilton Manors – pride is for everyone and it’s about being accepting of all people. This spirit of harmony truly permeates the city; so, go see all that Wilton Manors has to offer! GO

• MEDUSIRENA MERMAID
WRECK BAR

Fort Lauderdale's only mermaid show returned recently when the Sheraton Fort Lauderdale Beach Hotel finished its renovations. Every Friday at 6:30 p.m., the MeduSirena mermaid (Marina Duran-Anderson) and her MeduSirena Pod Aquaticats perform at the Wreck Bar. Actually, they swim in the hotel pool; visitors watch the performance through the bar's five "porthole" windows. The mermaids enthrall visitors with their long flowing hair and sparkly tails, each spending one to two minutes vamping in front of the windows before returning to a break at the surface. The mermaid's "pod" consists of four performers and four apprentices. Duran-Anderson makes all of the mermaid "tails," and she herself has more than 40.

• FEED THE TARPONS

Plan your visit to 15th Street Fisheries, one of South Florida's finest and most popular waterfront eateries, around 5 to 6 p.m. and you can watch the giant tarpon get fed outside along the dock. Whether arriving by boat or by car, 15th Street Fisheries is a favorite among locals and tourists alike. Each night there are tarpon feedings on the restaurant's docks, which has been hailed as one of Florida's must-see attractions.

Youth Grow More Than Vegetables in Northwest Plot

Alice Thomas of the Urban Youth Farmers tends their garden in Northwest Fort Lauderdale.

By Lynn Peithman Stock • Photography by Jason Leidy

If you happened to watch Alice Thomas tend the bunches of romaine lettuce or stalks of broccoli early in the morning at the Lindsay Urban Farm on Northwest 12th Terrace, you'd think she's tending her vegetables for that day's meal.

While that's certainly a tasty by-product, she's growing something much larger — her financial stake in Urban Youth Green Farmers.

At 22 years old, Thomas is one of seven shareholders in this new venture, an endeavor of the HONEY Project. HONEY stands for Helping Our Nations Empowering Youth. Part academy, part business training ground and part international economic development initiative, the non-profit trains students from age 15 to 24 to become entrepreneurs.

One a recent morning, Thomas walked through the rows of containers holding collard greens, tomatoes, peas and oregano as she talked about her share in Urban Youth Green Farmers. A vegetarian since the age of 10, she's passionate about bringing fresh, healthy food to the community. The new business accepts orders through its website, www.urbanyouthfarmers.com. "They're decent, affordable prices," she said. "We want people to have this food and to be able to afford it."

Thomas and the other business owners, ages 20 to 23, got their training through the HONEY Project. They learned to set up a business plan and each took on an area that interested them. Thomas helps tend to the harvest; someone else designed the website. All emerged as certified change agents after the 12-week program.

"The company is about helping a community and people globally," said Thomas, vice president of Urban Youth Green Farmers.

he is among more than 300 students that the HONEY Project has trained in social entrepreneurship, in which a social problem is identified and entrepreneurs work to create social change.

The 7,000-square-foot plot on Northwest 12th Terrace is an example of social entrepreneurship.

"This is a social enterprise. You're in the middle of a place they used to call the ugly corner. Now they're bringing hope. Nothing is impossible," said Nathan Burrell, founder and CEO of the HONEY Project. The project's mission is "to create natural resources for the community through urban farming, to provide motivation, enlightenment and empowerment for a sustainable environment and better health; showing communities that anything is possible."

The Housing Authority of the City of Fort Lauderdale provided the plot of land on Northwest 12th Terrace, where fresh fruits and vegetables sprout throughout the year. Youth Build, Step Up and the Urban League of Broward all help sponsor the garden along with business sponsors. "We have some great sponsors that provide the support," Burrell said.

The HONEY Project started 11 years ago with, not surprisingly, honey. Burrell guided a group of young adults to source, import, distribute, market and sell organic honey from Africa. "Our goal is to empower people through entrepreneurship," he said.

The HONEY Project will return to Africa in July when Burrell will lead seven students from South Florida to Ghana for 10 days. All of the students have gone through the HONEY Project training. Citrix Systems, Carlisle Group, BankAtlantic and Greater Fort Lauderdale Sister Cities have helped to make the trip to Ghana, Africa, possible.

The students will take their collective gardening and business experience to the village of Agogo, a sister city of Fort Lauderdale. "What better way to get started than to start with young people?" Burrell asked. "If we can do this in an urban area," he said, referring to the garden, "imagine what you can do in a sub-Saharan area? This is a training ground where we figure things out."

The Urban Youth Green Farmers is the fifth youth business that the HONEY Project has launched since 2006.

Past initiatives include a video production company, hurricane shutter company and a mobile car wash business. "We're trying to get the young people to be a part of the solutions," Burrell said.

Robert Lee Jr. went through the HONEY Project training and has started his own company called Legacy Video Entertainment, producing corporate videos. A student at the University of Central Florida in Orlando, he will accompany the group to Ghana and create a documentary about the trip.

"Nathan Burrell was my teacher and he taught us about business, business entrepreneurship and how to get started in business," said Lee, who learned how to gather capital, manage human resources and create a business plan. "It helped me to realize there are more things to do after graduation," said the 2007 graduate of Hallandale High School.

"I see I have different options to start my own business and work on my own schedule. It helped me to be passionate and to work toward my goals." GO

The Grassroots Approach to Changing the Urban Fabric

Volunteers Stephen Schuster and Luke Moorman spruce up Las Olas Boulevard.

On Christmas Day 2009, a residential neighborhood in Portland, Ore., received an unexpected gift – a hand-painted crosswalk across a street where no dedicated pedestrian safety feature previously existed.

In a city known for civic involvement and supporting the needs of cyclists and pedestrians, this act of anonymous “vandalism” in the name of the public good was received with equanimity by the city. Doug Klotz, vice-chair of the city’s Pedestrian Advisory Committee, simply said that it showed that “the public perceives the need for a safer crossing there.” And the city’s traffic engineer took a wait-and-see approach upon learning about the unauthorized crosswalk.

This event is just one of many similar incidents that have started to multiply in American cities in recent years.

With city budgets crimped and urban renewal efforts hampered by post-recession economic realities, a growing number of people are deciding it may be easier and faster to take urban improvement literally into their own hands.

Volunteers Tom Coyle, Shawn Sackman, Drew Saito, Brenda Cleaver, Cheryl Seinfeld helped fill planters along the Riverwalk.

“Do-it-yourself” urbanism is nothing new. People have taken the initiative to physically affect pieces of the public realm for as long as there have been cities. Some activities are more widely appreciated than others; a volunteer beach cleanup, for instance, is usually well received, while a guerrilla art mural on the side of a vacant building may elicit reproach from the building owner or the public. However, amidst the debate about centralized, top-down city planning, DIY urbanism appears ready for a more legitimate role in expressing community wishes for a better urban landscape.

Fort Lauderdale has seen examples of this already. In Flagler Village, on Northwest Third Avenue, a community vegetable garden had been operating until last month on a vacant parcel of land. The work of Kate Sheffield, a planner with the city’s Downtown Development Authority, the volunteer-built and managed garden operated on a site lent by Charles Ladd of Barron Real Estate, Inc., at no cost to the garden’s organizers. It had been well received since its launch in October 2010, expanding from eight garden plots to 20 and gaining public interest despite the lack of any formal marketing.

Serge Atherwood works in urban redevelopment for IBI Group in Pompano Beach and is highly involved in improving the downtown Fort Lauderdale community.

But it wasn’t a straightforward process. Sheffield had to dig into the City’s zoning ordinances to obtain approval for the project as a “civic club” use tied to the Flagler Village Civic Association. (The garden was removed by the property’s new owner, City National Bank of Florida, following a citation.) At her own initiative, Ms. Sheffield explored how to find approval for the garden and give an otherwise idle piece of land an opportunity to serve a temporary role as community builder.

DIY urbanism efforts such as these are often initiated outside of standard regulatory policies, but the best ones respect existing legalities to ensure no harm is done. In such instances, individual efforts to improve the community may be supported at the official level. Jenni Morejon, principal planner for the City of Fort Lauderdale, noted that “when government resources are scarce, we should acknowledge the community’s desire and enthusiasm for directly and immediately shaping the places in which we live.” Whether that includes community gardening or wall murals along the rail tracks, Morejon added, “These efforts provide a sense of collective community spirit. In many cases, they set the stage for more formal public/private partnership opportunities to improve our public spaces and create interesting and exciting places for all to enjoy.”

no one suggests that DIY urbanism condones the violation of property rights or public safety. Potential DIY’ers are cautioned to think about any negative consequences of their actions. The majority of DIY urbanism is undertaken by individuals who know about planning and property rights or know how to obtain that information.

As Fort Lauderdale celebrates its Centennial anniversary this year, more people are looking at how our fair city can expand on the acclaimed character of its public spaces – and DIY urbanism stands strong as a possible way forward. GO

City Honors 'Rosa Parks of Broward County'

By Kelly Gregorio

On July 4, the City of Fort Lauderdale and the Fort Lauderdale/Broward NAACP will celebrate the opening of the restored Eula Johnson House on Sistrunk Boulevard and commemorate the 50th anniversary of the historic wade-ins that led to the integration of Fort Lauderdale beaches.

a ribbon-cutting ceremony will be held at the Eula Johnson House at 9 a.m., Monday, July 4, at 1100 Sistrunk Blvd., Fort Lauderdale. Following that event will be a Beach Wade-In Ceremony and unveiling of a state historic marker at A1A and Las Olas Boulevard.

To help put these events in perspective, Fort Lauderdale Vice Mayor Bobby B. DuBose and the Fort Lauderdale Branch of the NAACP hosted a "Walk Through History" evening in June to share history lessons and honor the historic civil rights of Eula Johnson.

Johnson is remembered for her organization of the 1961 wade-in at the formerly segregated Fort Lauderdale Beach. She fought for equality not only at the beaches, but also in the Broward County school systems and the police department.

throughout the evening, residents shared their memories. After attending this event, I am grateful things have changed from the way they used to be and I was reminded to whom we all should direct such thanks.

Thank you to the first black municipal bus driver in Broward County. It must have been exciting when people lined the street to see you on the job. Thank you to the first certified African American lifeguard to comb our beaches. I'm sorry at times of emergency, when you needed to use a phone, locals businesses would tell you to "go find a dime." Thank you to the first clerk of dark colored skin to work at the Social Security office. I watched you at the event — you stood in front of the crowd in a great shade of green and told your story with a such sense of calm and wisdom that I can only imagine came from years of hard work and a powerful inner strength.

Plans for the Eula Johnson house include a museum and the new location of the Broward branch of the NAACP. Ribbon cutting at the house will be at 9 a.m. on Monday, July 4. In celebration of the 50th anniversary of the wade-in, the ribbon cutting will be followed by a reenactment at Fort Lauderdale Beach at A1A and Las Olas Blvd. Trolleys will transport event goers from Eula Johnson's house to the beach. The public is invited to attend. GO

Bravo Italiano Ristorante

Serving Up the Savory One Plate at a Time

By Alexandra Roland
Photography by Jason Leidy

Other than gregarious black clad servers, there is one thing that greets patrons as they walk into the foyer of the Bravo Italiano Ristorante: garlic.

The smell of fresh flavor penetrates waiting tastebuds, conjuring up a healthy appetite for authentic gourmet Italian food. Let the salivating begin.

As authentic as the food smells and as gourmet its quality, Bravo, nestled just off of the 17th Street Causeway, is not at all pretentious in nature. "I want (guests) to feel like they're walking into their own home," said Russ Dickson, owner.

Brick walls adorned with vintage Italian posters outline the 200-plus seat restaurant, filled with intimate comfortable booths situated for a business lunch or a romantic evening. The setting is one of unassuming legitimacy underscored by an understated yet strong chic elegance.

While patrons take in this home-like atmosphere, food is of course still on their minds. And with a menu chock full of flavorful sauces, high quality seafood and diverse pastas, it's understandable. From the basic pasta marinara to a more complex veal dish, Osso Bucco, quality is never compromised and seasoning is always highlighted.

Some chefs just fulfill their role. They cook the food and make sure it is plated presentably. Not at Bravo. Executive chef Jimmy Henriquez has been bringing something unique and different to Bravo tables for almost 20 years. "He cooks with love," Dickson said. "It really shows in his food. He is someone who cares about it." With a passion for flavor and a natural tendency toward innovation, Chef Henriquez's culinary creations are unprecedented, according to Dickson.

The Penne Vodka is one of Bravo's most popular dishes, equipped with a flavor burst of prosciutto and peas in a savory vodka sauce. The menu is also home to fresh soups that act as the perfect precursor to a main meal. Pasta Fagioli is served everyday, but specialty soups such as the Eggplant and Roasted Pepper Bisque or the Minestrone "pizza soup," mixed in with hard sausage and pepperoni, are offered on a "soup of the day" basis.

The Bravo menu sparks ingenuity with its unconventional yet equally as appetizing Grilled Calamari dish. Bravo's pizzas such as the spinach and mushroom Pizza San Marco, or the grilled chicken, spinach, onions, and goat cheese Mediterraneo are also prepared on a grill, providing a unique savor different from oven baked or coal fired.

After entrées, servers present guests with a seasonal dessert tray stocked with a sweet tooth's dream. The Rock Slide features a huge fudge brownie topped with caramel, big squares of chocolate, drizzled with nuts and served a la mode. As if that wasn't enough, patrons can also choose from the Brownie Bash, Tiramisu or a Lemon Cello Tart, a lemon pastry infused with raspberries and served with white chocolate shavings.

The Bravo bar also boasts 49 wines and a full liquor selection to be perfectly paired with the authentic Italian culinary selections. GO

Signature Dish

Grilled New Zealand baby lamb chops atop sautéed spinach, wild mushrooms and roasted red peppers. Garnished with goat cheese and a balsamic glaze with potatoes di giorno.

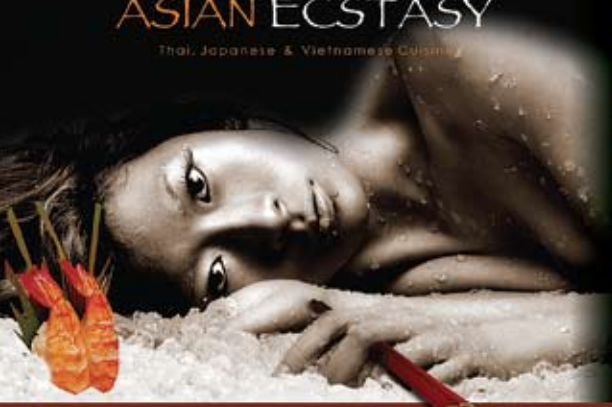

Suggested Wine Pairing Tommasi Poggio al Tufo Vigneto Rompicollo

The lamb chops pair well with this Super Tuscan from Tommasi Viticoltori. With 60 percent Sangiovese and 40 percent Cabernet Sauvignon, it has an intense bouquet of mature red berries fruits and is well-balanced with good structure and nice length with fruity flavors.

SUMMERTIME IS PRIME FOR GRILLING

Whole Foods Market Shares Tips For Making The Most Out Cooking Outdoors

It's summertime, which means time with friends and family while cooking and eating outdoors. At Whole Foods Market we want you to enjoy your food as much as you enjoy your leisure time. Here are some tips from us on how to make outdoor cooking and eating easier and tastier.

- Prepare your grill by cleaning and grilling the rack before each use.
- Marinate your meats prior to grilling to make them more tender and flavorful. Be creative with the marinades that you create or buy pre-made ones to save yourself some time.
- Grilling isn't just about meats. Try grilling tofu or vegetables as well. You can even grill tater tots and onions rings if you want to do your whole meal outside.

- When grilling veggies be sure to cut them into slices so you can get more surface area on the grill and get more flavor
- When you take the veggies off the grill spread them out instead of stacking, which can cause them to steam and become soggy
- If you're looking for a little more flavor trying brushing the vegetables with Dijon mustard, balsamic vinegar, or salad dressings before grilling.
- Don't forget about grilling fruit too. Peaches, pears, mangoes and pineapple are all great to grill and then put on top of salads, pound cake or ice cream.

However, we know that sometimes you're in a hurry and need something last minute to please your guests. Choose from our selection of grill-ready foods in the meat and seafood departments. All of them are freshly prepared with marinades and seasonings that meet our strict Quality Standards.

- All you add is the grill!
- Chicken, pork, beef, lamb and seafood kabobs
- Several varieties of pre-seasoned ground beef patties
- House-made fresh sausages
- Salmon burgers and crab cakes

Grilled Heirloom Tomato & Pesto Pizzas

An easy, flavorful way to combine two summer classics: grilling and heirloom tomatoes. Choose heirlooms in contrasting sizes, shapes and colors for the most visual appeal. For the crispest pizza make sure you roll your dough out thinly and evenly and don't overload the top with tomatoes.

Ingredients

- 1 pound frozen whole wheat or white pizza dough, thawed (available in our Prepared Foods or Bakery department)
- 4 teaspoons extra-virgin olive oil
- 8 tablespoons prepared basil pesto
- 1 to 1 1/2 pounds mixed heirloom or other seasonal tomatoes, very thinly sliced
- 1/2 teaspoon fine sea salt, divided
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper, divided
- 3/4 cup crumbled goat cheese

Method

Divide pizza dough into 4 equal balls. On a lightly floured surface, roll each ball out to a rough circle about 9 inches in diameter; brush each side of the circles with olive oil and place on baking sheets.

Prepare a grill for medium heat cooking. Working with one piece of dough at a time, place it on the grill rack and cook, rotating the crust frequently with tongs to help it cook evenly, until darkly browned on the bottom and air bubbles form on top, 3 to 4 minutes. Transfer browned-side up to the baking sheet; spread the browned side with 2 tablespoons pesto. Top with a few slices tomato (don't cover the entire surface or the pizza will end up soggy), sprinkle the top with 1/2 teaspoon each salt and pepper, and dot with goat cheese. Slide or lift the pizza back onto the grill, close the grill cover and cook, rotating the pizza every now and then, until the bottom is deeply browned and the cheese begins to melt, about 3 minutes. Slide or lift the pizza back onto the baking sheet. Repeat with the remaining dough.

Dr. Yani McConnell

'I trust everyone in your office, everyone is very caring and understanding, and you take really good care of me. I get more oral care from your office than I have from any dentist office anywhere.'

- Gwynne B.

LIVING LIFE SMILING

A passion for helping the world smile through oral health care

GO RIVERWALK: We are delighted to introduce you to Dr. Yanitza "Yani" McConnell, DMD. Dr. Yani, as she's known by just about everyone, talked with us recently about her general and cosmetic dentistry practice on east Davie Boulevard, between Andrews Avenue and Federal Highway. She gave us quite an education on what's going on in the field of dentistry these days and it's light years beyond the old 'drill 'em and fill 'em' days of dentistry. As such, we thought you'd enjoy getting to know a little more about Dr. Yani and her practice.

Dr. Yani McConnell's passion is designing beautiful and functional smiles. With her vast expertise, artistic eye and many years of training, she brings a high level of trust and proven ability to achieve the most gorgeous results possible. Specializing in comprehensive and cosmetic dentistry, Dr. Yani and her team are experts at treating dental decay and restoring smiles to look and function their best. In restorative dental care, Dr. Yani addresses oral flaws and degenerative needs with an artist's touch and attention to detail. With an unwavering commitment to oral health and to providing the best in dental services with compassion, care and understanding, the professional team of Dr. Yani's office brings the latest dental technology and techniques to preventative, periodontal, restorative, surgical and cosmetic dentistry.

Exceptional dentistry starts here, in the lobby of Dr. McConnell's office on Andrew's Avenue

'Everyone was sooooo friendly and accommodating! I also felt that everyone in the office really cared about me and my teeth, not just getting paid. They fit me in, and even changed their schedule to get my cavities filled in the same visit! Absolutely amazing.'

- Haile P.

GO RIVERWALK: Dr. Yani, what do you think is the most important information about you and your practice that our readers should know?

My passion is to keep my patients healthy, happy and smiling with the same kind of quality dental and oral health care that my own family receives. Our dental team members are known for their patience and understanding, taking the time to educate our patients on lifelong preventative care as well as treating current dental issues. We deliver dental services to families and individuals with a belief that everyone deserves the best in state-of-the-art care. We want our patients to have the kind of peace of mind that comes from knowing they're working with true dental and oral health care experts that care about them and can turn their dream smiles into a reality.

Exceptional dentistry is more than just excellent clinical skills and state-of-the-art equipment and technology. It's about establishing lasting relationships with our patients based upon mutual trust and open communication. We are dedicated to treating people and improving their lives and overall health. Our job isn't to lecture you when you come in the door about all the things you're doing wrong. Instead, we work with you to educate you about preventative oral care.

We have a team of professional specialists from every specialty area, providing Cosmetic Dentistry, General Dentistry, Crowns and Bridges, Veneers, Dental Implants, Dentures, Conscious Sedation, Teeth Whitening, Invisalign, Smile Makeovers and more.

Perhaps our most unique area of specialization is smile makeovers, which requires combining today's most cutting-edge cosmetic dentistry techniques. I'm also a Preferred Invisalign® dentist, giving us the ability to design a beautiful new smile for you by straightening teeth with clear, virtually undetectable aligners from Invisalign®. Our website, www.YaniDMD.com, has a Smile Gallery where your readers can see our patients' dramatic transformations.

Dr. Yani's office brings the latest dental technology and techniques.

Professional Background

Dr. McConnell completed her residency in Advanced Education in General Dentistry in North Miami 2002-2003. She pursued and received her degree in Dental Medicine Doctor (DMD) from Nova Southeastern University (NSU) in 2006. Dr. McConnell was nominated in the "Dean's List" for all 3 consecutive years while in Dental School at NSU. She was also one of the few nominees as honorific member of OKU Dental Fraternity.

Dr. McConnell is a member of many distinguished dental organizations, including The American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry - (AACD); The American Dental Association - (ADA); The Academy of General Dentistry - (AGD); Atlantic Coast Dental Association - (ACDA); and The Florida Dental Association - (FDA).

General Manager, Riverside Hotel

competition is that we are the “Smallest Big City” — we have all the amenities like a big city does, but Fort Lauderdale delivers them with a personal touch.

Tell us a little about yourself.

Born and raised in Germany, I immigrated to the United States as a 17-year-old exchange student and graduated from the University of Kansas. I started in the hospitality industry 26 years ago and worked for brands such as Leading Hotels of the World, Renaissance Hotels and Resorts, Marriott Hotels and Resort, Hilton, Sheraton, Radisson, Independent Hotels and Private Equity Clubs. In October 2010 I joined the Riverside Hotel and Las Olas Company, where I immediately felt at home working with a world-class staff, engaged board and very supportive community. The Riverside Hotel will be celebrating its 75th anniversary in December and is the only full-service hotel on Las Olas Boulevard.

I am married to my beautiful wife, Elenice Dobrikow, who is a vice president of personal banking at 1st United Bank, handling its Brazilian portfolios. I enjoy golf, tennis, boating, scuba diving, traveling and taking the motorcycle out for a ride.

We love living in South Florida and enjoy every aspect it has to offer.

Why did you join Riverwalk Trust?

The Riverwalk Trust is an important partner to the Riverside Hotel, Las Olas Company and the Las Olas Boulevard. As our organizations have the same goals to make the entire Las Olas Boulevard an international destination for all market segments, it is crucial to engage in an alliance strategy to grow more exposure jointly. The Riverwalk Trust is a steering organization that does not shy away from taking risks and trying new ideas to better the experience for our local residents and visitors. This kind of energy and leadership has attracted the Riverside Hotel and Las Olas Company to continue a strong supportive relationship for many years to come.

What sets Fort Lauderdale apart from most of our com-

By 1961, county officials still had not addressed the lack of amenities and the difficult access to the so-called "black" beach. To draw attention to the problem, NAACP officials Eula Johnson and Von D. Mizell staged a series of wade-ins at Fort Lauderdale's famous, and segregated, public beach. A Fort Lauderdale policeman orders young protesters to leave the whites-only beach. Photo courtesy of the Fort Lauderdale Historical Society
