CITY INITIATIVES

IMPORTANT VOTE COMING IN MARCH

n March 12, 2019, the City of Fort Lauderdale will hold a special election addressing several issues raised up through public input.

The Police Bond is anticipated to raise $100M for the construction of an updated and sustainable police station complete with adequate space for the anticipated growth over the next 30 years. The current station built in 1958 for 100 employees no longer is large enough to support the 772 personnel and other needs of a busy and functioning public safety headquarters. The current facility is not certified for hurricane/extreme weather and requires that the command center must move to other facilities during those important times. The proposed facility is to be constructed on the existing land of the current station and to provide for a parking garage and an energy efficient building reducing operating cost. It will move vital services currently housed offsite, back into a single building creating a greater efficiency of service. The building is being planned with the community in mind and some space made available for the community's use.

The Parks Bond is anticipated to raise $200M to fund significant citywide investments in our parks system, to strengthen resiliency, address sea level rise, combat flooding, and mitigate the effects of climate change. Nearly every park in our City would see upgrades and enhancements like new playgrounds, walking trails, pools and splash pads, boat slips and ramps, outdoor fitness equipment, athletic courts and fields, lighting, solar panels and shade structures, pavilions, restrooms, ADA improvements and even new dog parks. A portion of the parks bond funding would be earmarked for future signature projects in each Commission District: District 4 - constructing Tunnel Top Park atop the northern portion of the Kinney Tunnel above Federal Highway; District 1 - rehabilitating Lockhart Stadium and developing the surrounding property to include playfields and upgrade of the stadium; District 2 - adding a water playground, tennis courts, sand volleyball courts and other athletic fields as well as a parking garage to Holiday Park; and building a new community center and other enhancements at Joseph C. Carter Park in District 3. Additional funds will be set aside for acquisition of additional park/green space as our population continues to grow.

A proposed update in the City Charter is also included to clean up language and a second initiative that would move the City elections from March to November beginning in 2020 to align with the Presidential election years. Primary elections would be eliminated and the terms of the Mayor and Commissioner would be increased from three years to four years.

Riverwalk Fort Lauderdale, Inc. including the Board of Directors and Staff support the city initiatives and will work to assist in educating the public about the opportunities these bonds offer. We encourage you to vote on March 12, 2019. Be a part of your community decisions and future.

AUSTIN BERGMAN
LAUDERDALEONE

• A native of Richmond, Virginia, I was introduced to the real estate profession when I bought my first house at the age of twenty. After that experience, I knew I could be a successful real estate agent and I dove into my new profession. It became a running joke among my friends that I couldn't take any of my clients out for drinks because I wasn't 21 yet! Nonetheless, I founded Valentine Properties in 2007 and by the time I sold it in 2017, it was the second largest brokerage in Richmond.

Upon moving to Fort Lauderdale, I knew I wanted to work for a small, high-end broker and when I found LauderdaleONE, it checked off all the boxes for me. I have the privilege of selling some of the most exclusive homes in all of South Florida and the opportunity to meet buyers from all over the world.

A friend of mine introduced me to Riverwalk last year and I immediately loved the people and the energy of the organization. I knew right then and there I had to become more involved and have enjoyed every event I have attended. You might have even seen me in the dunk tank during the Fall Festival!

All in all, you might say the last couple of years have been a whirlwind for me. In fact, some days I stop and wonder how I got here. Fortunately, I have met some great new friends and made some amazing business connections that have helped me adapt to my surroundings in record time.

PREMIER CONCIERGE SOLUTIONS

Born and raised in Italy, my family and I moved to Philadelphia in 2003 and merged into the restaurant industry.
 Being the son of a restauranteur and spending many hours working in those establishments is where I suspect my love of helping others was born. Premier Concierge Solutions, Inc. does just that – helps individuals and businesses renegotiate better rates on their monthly expenses.

Founded in 2016, Premier Concierge Solutions, Inc. has collectively saved its clients over $100,000 in just 12 months. Starting with the basic principal that no one should overpay for services they don't need, much of our success is derived from reviewing telecommunication expenses, overhead cost, and a breakdown of price and performance efficiency. While saving money is important, managing and planning those savings require just as much scrutiny. This is why we've extended our expertise to include life insurance and financial services. Within our team, there is 50 years of experience collectively which provides our clients with exemplary performance, the highest standards of ethics, knowledge, service and productivity.

Prior to Premier Concierge Solution Inc., I enjoyed a successful career with AT&T in the sales and marketing division. This experience has been the foundation in our drive to solving problems and providing reliable guidance to our clients. I believe what I do has a sense of community to it and Riverwalk is a perfect way to help others while learning more about this great city.

Members of Riverwalk Fort Lauderdale express their support and join us in our mission of building a vibrant community. Riverwalk supports Downtown's diverse, mixed-use community of arts and entertainment establishments along with business, residential, judicial, educational, and marine interests.

SPECIAL ELECTION ON MARCH 12

NEW PARKS, PUBLIC SAFETY COMPLEX AND CHARTER CHANGES

appy New Year! I hope 2019 is a fantastic year for you, your loved ones and our City. We began our year by welcoming a new City Manager. Chris Lagerbloom replaced Lee Feldman as our City Manager on January 1st. We thank Lee for his excellent service and tireless work, and we look forward to continuing our success under Chris' leadership.

On Tuesday, March 12, voters will have an opportunity to participate in a Special Election to shape the future of our City. This is a non-partisan election, open only to registered voters in the City of Fort Lauderdale.

To register to vote, please visit the Broward County Supervisor of Elections' website at www.browardsoe.org.

Two bond proposals will appear on the March 12 ballot. If approved, a public safety bond would allocate up to $100 million to construct a new police headquarters while maintaining and enhancing the outstanding level of service provided by our Fort Lauderdale Police Department. A parks bond would allocate up to $200 million for citywide improvements to our parks and recreation facilities.

The public safety bond would enable us to replace the current police headquarters, which was built in 1958 when the police department and our City were both significantly smaller. The 85,000 square-foot building is 60 years old, functionally obsolete, and parts of it are in deteriorating condition. The new facility would offer 225,000 square feet and provide expanded work space and integrated state-of-the-art technology to a department, which has grown to 525 sworn officers and 727 sworn and non-sworn personnel.

The station would be constructed on its existing land with energy and operationally efficient features, along with hurricane resistant materials and building techniques to better serve the public safety needs of our City, which is expected to grow to over 203,000 in the next decade.

The parks bond would fund significant citywide investments in our parks system to strengthen resiliency, address sea level rise, combat flooding, and mitigate the effects of climate change. Nearly every park in our City would see upgrades and enhancements such as new playgrounds, walking trails, pools and splash pads, boat slips and ramps, outdoor fitness equipment, athletic courts and fields, lighting, solar panels and shade structures, pavilions, restrooms, ADA improvements and even new dog parks.

A portion of the parks bond funding would be earmarked for signature projects in each Commission District including constructing Tunnel Top Park in District 4 atop the northern portion of the Kinney Tunnel above Federal Highway; rehabilitating Lockhart Stadium and developing the surrounding property in District 1; adding a water playground, tennis courts, sand volleyball courts, and a parking garage to Holiday Park in District 2; and building a new community center and other enhancements at Joseph C. Carter Park in District 3.

If approved, the bonds would bring more than $300 million in much-needed public safety and parks and recreation improvements to our City, strengthen our economic viability and livability, and enhance our stature as a great place to visit and an even better place to call home.

Additionally, a proposal to update our City's Charter will appear on the March 12 ballot. The Charter Amendments, if approved, would move our City's elections from March to November, beginning in 2020, to align with Presidential election years. Primary elections would be eliminated and the terms of the Mayor and Commissioners would be increased from three years to four years. These changes would bring our City in line with the majority of municipalities in Broward County.

Keep an eye out for future updates and ways that you can participate in the process. If you have any questions, please contact me at BSorensen@ fortlauderdale.gov or (954) 828-5004. ⁽¹⁾

#FTLONTHERISE | VERSION 2.0

THE FACES OF DOWNTOWNFTL

We've all heard that a picture is worth a thousand words. If that's true, then the story of our city's changing landscape can be summed up in a mere 189,000 words. That's because friends and followers of our social media channels submitted 189 photos last fall for our first ever #FTLontheRise photo campaign.

That's when we asked people to share images showcasing the beauty of development and construction in Downtown Fort Lauderdale. If you do the math, those images should capture enough words to keep my monthly article flowing for the next 30 years!

But alas, there's more to DowntownFTL than a dynamic skyline. At the ground level, Downtown is a beehive of activity filled with the vibrancy of people from all walks of life. Our city streets flow with families and singles, the young and the old, entrepreneurs, bartenders, CEOs and delivery drivers, pets and strollers, scooters and more.

It's fitting then that this next installment of our #FTLontheRise campaign will celebrate all of us—the people who make Downtown so great. We want you to share photos of yourself, your friends, your family, or anyone else (including pets!) enjoying all that DowntownFTL has to offer.

Post your photo to Instagram, Facebook and Twitter using the hashtags #DowntownFTL and #FTLontheRise and your picture will become part of our campaign. The top 10 images will be voted on by the public and one will be crowned as the fan favorite, with the winning photographer set to receive a $150 gift card to their favorite DowntownFTL restaurant.

Want to learn more or see images from our last #FTLontherise campaign? Search @ddaftl on Facebook, Instagram or Twitter and get your camera ready! ① think it's pretty common knowledge that the word innovation is associated with new methods of thought and ideas. The word comes from the Latin word innovare, which means to renew, restore, or a novel change (thank you internet!). So, I believe we can all agree that the word means something special.

TECHNOLOGY PROGRESSES

FORT LAUDERDALE CONTINUES TO BE INNOVATIVE

And, it doesn't always need to be something that nobody has thought of before. It can also mean thinking in new ways. For instance, Henry Ford and the Model T. All he did was take existing technologies and manufacturing techniques and put them together in an innovative way that reduced the cost of constructing cars. He reduced the cost so much that more people could afford a car than ever before. The car had already been invented and was available for almost 30 years. His contribution changed the industry forever and caused everyone else to adjust.

How about Apple and the iPhone. Again, Steve Jobs took existing technologies and created something that was truly different and innovative. Since I was a kid I've always heard that we'd someday carry computers in our pockets and they would be indispensable. So, what happened next? Well, every other phone company on the planet had to start thinking differently and basically copied the iPhone starting the smartphone revolution. Smartphones are distracting, can be annoying, and cost a small fortune, but think of business without a smartphone or most social interactions (something I'm not entirely happy about). Any way you slice it, you can't deny the impact the smartphone has had on the world.

But, innovation can be scary and very few people like change. Although, if you think about it, our whole society is based on change. From our political process (hello...every 4 years), to technology (smartphones), to how we live (Americans move more than any other country, according to the Allstate ad I just watched while I write this), and how quickly we get bored with our entertainment (new shows every season). So, change is not all bad and can result in wonderful things. Imagine what would have happened if people ran the other way from some of this country's most innovative ideas. If defense contractor Raytheon hadn't realized what it had we'd all be cooking everything much slower...at least till someone else came up with one of our most successful timesaving appliances.

So, what am I rambling on about? Well, being innovative doesn't mean just creating something that can take you from point a to point b or the amazing new devise we just can't live without that is guaranteed to cut cooking time in half. Innovation can be something intangible and conceptual.

Cities can be innovative as well. Outside the box thinking can result in innovative solutions to ongoing problems. It's easy to criticize new ideas. It's hard to accept change when it looks like something that will alter the status quo. But, it's not all bad. The City of Fort Lauderdale has been working to be innovative for the past several years. I won't go into how I think the City has been innovative, mostly because some people won't agree with me. However, at some point in the future we may look back on this period in our city's history as one of the most productive. Who knows? The result may surprise you! 📵

AUTO PARKING GETS AUTOMATED

CITY USES TECHNOLOGY TO IMPROVE TRAFFIC AND PARKING

s a City, we are continuously striving to innovate and improve our operations to enhance services and experiences for all our neighbors and visitors. In 2019, the Transportation and Mobility Department will continue to take this goal of innovation to new heights with several upcoming key projects and initiatives.

Many of you might have paid a visit to the City's new Las Olas Garage that opened in December. This garage is the embodiment of innovation in the parking industry. Not only in the design of the structure and the amenities that it holds, but also in the technology installed within the garage itself. As you're driving through the garage, finding an open space is faster with the new real-time space availability system. As you enter the garage, and at each level, color-coded lights lead the way. Green means there is an open space and red indicates a space that is occupied. Signage outside of the garage will also display the number of available spaces before you enter.

The new Parking Management System will deliver further innovation to the Parking Services Division bringing new features and benefits to the City's parking service. Anticipated to be completed in 2019, the new Parking Management System will come with a new mobile application that will allow you to see available parking spaces citywide, pay for parking citations, and purchase parking permits right from your cell phone. Parking permits will continue to be transitioned to a digital format. Advancing towards digital permits will allow parking permits to be purchased from the comfort of your home or office, and will provide for your vehicle license plate as your permit so no decals will have to be displayed on your vehicle.

We are not only innovating the way we park but also how we move. This year we will begin work on modernizing two iconic roadways within the City: Breakers Avenue and Las Olas Boulevard. Working with stakeholders, neighbors and businesses, Transportation and Mobility will begin plans to reimagine both of these roadways to improve traffic flow, increase safety and to enhance the experience. The Sun Trolley fleet will also be getting a facelift in 2019. By collaborating with the Transportation Management Authority (TMA), we will be able to change the way we use the Sun Trolley within the City in order to enjoy new amenities as you travel.

This year we will also begin to look at innovation in one of the most critical areas within our transportation network: Traffic signalization. Working with our partners at the Florida Department of Transportation and Broward County, we will begin identifying opportunities for improvement with specific corridors > and intersections to advance the traffic synchronization technology and innovate the way traffic moves.

Mobility is constantly changing as our City continues to grow. However, by keeping innovation in mind, we have been able to think outside the box and introduce new and exciting projects and programs to continue to make Fort Lauderdale "the City you never want to leave". @ he ability to be outside year-round is certainly a perk that welcomed and kept me here as a Florida transplant ten years ago. With the City's park bond on the ballots this March it has me thinking about the several already established outdoor cultural offerings I frequent, including: Riverwalk Jazz Brunch; Art Fort Lauderdale (the art fair where patrons traverse via the Water Taxi); First Fridays in Pompano; Food in Motion; and of course, the many monthly art walks throughout our County.

Another free, annual event coming up this February is Moonlight Tales, which offers attendees the chance to hear stories and listen to music under the stars.

This year, it will be hosted by Dr. Caren S. Neile and will feature performances including Jamaica Farewell with Debra Ehrhardt, traditional folktales told by Mij Byram and live music by The Promises Band.

The Huffington Post called L.A.-based storyteller Debra Ehrhardt's Jamaica Farewell "Must see, unforgettable." Storyteller Mij Byram's traditional folktale are infused with warmth, wisdom and an adult sensibility. Get your groove on with Motown, soul and R&B from The Promises Band, who play locally at Jo Baby Cajun & Crawfish House in Lauderhill, the Blue Anchor in Delray Beach and other locations.

The adult song and story cabaret will take place Friday, February 22, from 7-9:30 PM at the Fort Lauderdale Women's Club, which is adjacent to the Main Library, 100 S. Andrews Ave., Fort Lauderdale.

Admission to Moonlight Tales, which is presented by the Friends of Fort Lauderdale Libraries and Broward County Library, is free. Light refreshments will be on sale. For more information, visit Broward.org/Library or call 954-357-7443.

BUILDING THE PILLARS OF OUR LOCAL ECONOMY

ORGANIZATIONS WORKING TOGETHER TO PROMOTE AND IMPROVE FORT LAUDERDALE

ast month I informed you of the transformation position in which we find ourselves. The big question is how do we maintain our position? More importantly, how do we grow for the future?

We know we are creating roughly 25,000 net new jobs in Broward County year-over-year. Between now and 2030 we will need to create approximately 75,000 net new jobs in order to keep up with our population growth.

There is no silver bullet or singular economic magnetism upon which business blossoms. It is the collective livability and vibe drawing and engaging CEOs, millennials, retirees, international guests and business leaders.

Schools, transportation, cultural offerings, great dining, recreation, advance learning, healthcare, attainable housing...the list seems limitless. How the Chamber strategically engages on transformative items is the key. We must work with our partners making ever sure not to duplicate efforts. We have limited resources that must be used wisely.

These issues came up at Business and Industry Day recently at Leadership Fort Lauderdale Class XV. The Greater Fort Lauderdale Alliance, the Downtown Development Authority, the City of Fort Lauderdale, and the Chamber we asked numerous questions about our economy.

Jennie Morejon, President and CEO of the DDA, is focused on improvements to our outstanding urban center. She is responsible for facilitating investment, improving mobility, engaging the community and enhancing the public realm. What would we be without the Broward Center for the Performing Arts or the Museum of Science and Discovery?

The Alliance works to attract new companies from outside of the State of Florida. Bob Swindell, President and CEO, said he has four foundations of economic development:

- 1. Marketing and promoting Broward County as a place to do business.
- 2. Managing expansion, relocation and retention of projects.
- 3. Conducting and providing market research and business intelligence.
- 4. Securing and enhancing private/public leadership and investment.

Swindell has been targeting two areas for growth: marine research and aerospace. He and colleague Phil Purcell, president and CEO of the Marine Industry Association of South Florida, have collaborated with Florida Atlantic University, Nova Southeastern University and others to create the Marine Research Hub. This strategy will leverage current research and attract future investment which means jobs.

"Transportation solutions, infrastructure investment and resilience," are the holy trinity for City Manager Chris Lagerbloom. These areas will be a focal point for his first year at the helm. They dovetail nicely with an election in March for two bond issues: parks and a new police station.

Your Chamber will be engaged in critical strategies on transportation, airport expansion, environmental improvements, and healthcare to name but four. We will travel to Washington, DC, Tallahassee, and meet with our municipal leaders to add the business community's voice.

While our economy is solid, we must continually work with our partners to improve key pillars on which we rely. You can help by joining one of these organizations or volunteering at your city. ①

DEMAND FOR SKILLED TRADES GROWS

MIASF HELPING TO PLOT THE COURSE FOR FUTURE CAREERS

y all accounts, 2019 will herald in next-generation artificial intelligence (AI), augmented reality (AR), and 5G networks, all designed to offer practical applications using key new technologies. From facial recognition, to autonomous vehicles, to wearable gadgetry and personal health care systems that collect heart rate, blood pressure, and other data, technology is becoming more and more personal and viewed as equally indispensable.

Despite massive privacy concerns related to social media, internet searches, and online data collection, as well as an array of voice-controlled personal assistants like Amazon Echo (Alexa), Google Assistant, Nest, Ring, and other electronic voyeurs of our personal lives, the convenience and efficiency of technology and smart devices seems to be irretrievably embedded in our daily routines. But will the cost of all this technological expediency end up being our jobs?

While the first industrial robot was created back in 1961 for a General Motors' assembly line, many people now have increasing fears that the fast-pace and proliferation of technology and automation will ultimately negatively impact human jobs. In fact, a 2017 report by McKinsey Global Institute found that as many as 800 million global workers could be replaced by technology by 2030. Think ATMs (automatic teller machine) and self-service checkouts, manufacturing machinery, travel planning apps, mortgage approval websites, and so many other industries that have been permanently disrupted by technology.

However, while it's true that AI and robotics can replace human decision making and repetitive physical tasks, some jobs will always require dexterity, fine motor skills, and problem solving – skills unlikely to be adapted by robots any time soon. A separate study conducted by Deloitte found that despite 800,000 jobs being eliminated by automation technologies, 3.5 million new jobs were created. In fact, as automation becomes increasingly common, there will be a need for skilled trade professionals to repair and maintain all that machinery.

Interestingly a national shortage of skilled trade workers is pushing those wages higher, and while the ROI on a bachelor's degree weakens, student debt piles up. The unprecedented need for electricians, plumbers, HVAC technicians, mechanics, welders, carpenters, and painters continues to grow, and for the marine industry, which pays 28% higher than the State average, the numbers are increasing exponentially as seasoned veterans age-out of the workforce without replacement personnel.

With its Salty Jobs video series, (www.saltyjobs.org), the Marine Industries Association of South Florida showcases the amazing careers that trade skills can offer anyone with the right attitude and aptitude. Jobs that pay well and offer benefits, advancement, and travel. In this complex and fast-paced age of automation, it could be that skilled trade jobs have become the most secure jobs of the future.

A FAREWELL TO APPS

rom the day Steve Jobs stood on stage at Macworld 2007 and waved around an iPhone, the need to "have an app" has been a costly reality for any business looking to connect with their mobile customers. Based on technologies that differed from those widely known and used in web development, curated through an app store with a price of admission that made Apple your business partner and with the requirement that it be built on a Mac, creating an app for the early iPhone presented many hurdles that made the process both time consuming and expensive.

The arrival of Android, sadly, didn't do much to help. While a more open ecosystem, Android introduced its own incompatible technology stack. It also introduced something called fragmentation. Hundreds of models with different versions of Android, that might never be updated, meant that an app targeted to one Android device might not work on another. Time and money had to be poured into testing to get an Android app running reliably everywhere.

With these two main players, if you wanted to reach all of your customers the unavoidable nightmare conclusion was you didn't need one app, you needed two. Two teams of developers. Two app stores, each with its own set of rules and its own slice of your pie. Two code bases that needed constant maintenance to keep up with operating system updates. Meanwhile, your website, an investment which could have provided the same functionality to any device, given a sufficiently advanced mobile web browser, sat unused by your mobile customers.

Now, after twelve years of boom times, the golden age of apps may slowly be coming to an end. Google, whose profit motive is satisfied by getting eyeballs on devices, rather than selling apps through an app store, is championing an innovation in website technology. Google's premise is that apps have too much friction associated with them. Compared to visiting a web site, which is as simple as clicking a link, installing an app requires an investment of time and concentration. But what if, on a visit to a web site, the web site could offer to become an app? Enter the Progressive Web App.

A Progressive Web App, PWA for short, is a retrofittable enhancement to the codebase of any website which allows it to offer to add itself to your mobile device's home screen. If you agree, you will find a new app logo, right next to your existing native apps. A touch on the logo will start the PWA in a full-screen format, whether or not you are online, just like a native app. It can open on whichever page of your website makes the most sense for a mobile user. If you are online, the PWA will check in the background for fresh content on your website and update itself. Free from the walled garden of an app store, your app will be discoverable and indexable by search engines, and shareable just by sending a link.

Progressive Web Apps currently have full support on Android and partial support in Safari on iOS (add to home screen is in the share menu rather than a popup) and degrade gracefully in browsers that don't support them. There are many case histories of organizations switching to PWA's and greatly increasing engagement, conversions, and time-on-site. Experience a PWA for yourself on Riverwalk Fort Lauderdale's website at https://www.goriverwalk.com/ and Revolution Live at https://www.jointherevolution.net/.

This extended late filing period allows you to apply for or renew any valuable tax-saving exemptions including Homestead Exemption and the Low-Income Senior Exemption for the 2019 tax year. There are no late fees to late file for these exemptions so do not miss out on this important opportunity even if you miss the March 1 deadline.

BUSINESS TANGIBLE PERSONAL PROPERTY

Any person or entity that owns or possesses tangible personal property located in Florida, as of the January 1 tax assessment date, must file a DR-405 Tangible Personal Property Tax Return with the Property Appraiser in the county where the property is (or was) physically located on January 1. Tangible personal property includes equipment, fixtures, furniture, appliances, leasehold improvements, supplies, leased equipment and any other assets used by the business.

13TH STREET CORRIDOR REBORN

CREATING SPACE FOR OPPORTUNITIES

WRITER ROSE FARAONE

he 13th Street corridor is a community on the rise and a natural corridor in the middle of Fort Lauderdale, one of the next up and coming spots. While some of the city is experiencing new development, the 13th street area in Fort Lauderdale is focused on the middle. The middle is not just referring to a location but also the middle in economics, especially for new unique businesses. This corridor is providing new businesses the opportunity to move into older buildings made to look new again. The tenants have the ability to start with a clean slate and create their own space. These old buildings have souls and are affordable and that's why they are in high demand.

Community developer Abby Laughlin has a vision for 13th Street. "This is the second generation of transformation here," explained Laughlin. The community has been hard at work on the 13th Street Corridor, not just one building at a time, but the entire street. The once obvious metal bars are no longer on the windows. The buildings have a fresh coat of paint and soon many more of these spaces will have new big windows and doors to welcome shoppers. After the first renovation was complete, neighboring businesses joined in with new paint and landscaping. The 13th Street Corridor is considered the spine that connects the neighboring areas of Flagler Village, Wilton Manors and Poinsettia Heights. Since the renewal of the corridor, these neighboring communities are more cohesive and connected.

Considered the anchor, Milk Money Bar & Kitchen is described as a cozy neighborhood cocktail bar and full-service restaurant serving breakfast, lunch and late-night dishes. You can relax in the outdoor seating or enjoy one of their famous cocktails at the bar, you can't make a wrong choice. "These anchors are engaging and exciting and invite others to come along," says Colleen Lockwood, a resident. Located in the same mixed-use building, Buck & Beard offers hair services in an environment where post-industrial and modern luxury collide. With ten chairs and 17 barbers, you will walk out feeling happy and looking amazing.

Wandering down the street, you will see murals from Project COAT (Community of Artists Transform). Project COAT transforms streets into galleries.

When you are ready to go inside, Oddballs Nifty Thrifty is a welcome surprise. What feels like endless rooms with eclectic items from a variety of eras is a > place you could spend hours. Whether you shop or grab a seat at the game table, be sure to inquire with the friendly owners about the craft beer and wine.

The first transformation of 13th Street was the inclusion of bike lanes, public art and green spaces, making it a pedestrian-friendly street. Watching the city invest in this area, Laughlin knew this was the location for her

Views of the Project COAT murals

13th Street is excited about a new Festival and Car Show next project. This corridor is filled with opportunities. Continuing on the street, Laughlin's vision for the available spaces is clear. "Every available location has a story - this space will soon be a bakery - this space a juice bar - this space an art gallery and this space a restaurant with an outdoor café," beamed Laughlin. A unique shipping container plot is already in the works, creating new opportunities in an underused open-space.

What keeps this urban community unique is the stock of affordable housing. "This area is a breath of fresh air," says Laughlin. Affordable housing is offering renters a place to step into home ownership while staying close to downtown. There is hope for an additional Tri-Rail stop in the area and desire to create a project near the railroad tracks similar to Mockingbird Trail. The overall desire is to replicate the example of a community organizing a recreational and cultural space for all - a place where people can mix it up. What's next for the 13th Street Corridor? The possibilities are limitless.

TRANSFORMING HEALTHCARE

e all have a love/hate relationship with technology and innovation. Sure, we like when tasks are made easier, or we can be more efficient in our jobs or are given more choices in life. However, as we become more reliant on technology to ease our day-to-day activities, there is a sense of a lack of control, whether it is automated customer service centers or driverless cars we are feeling left out of the process.

We live in an impressive, high-tech world, where people cannot live without their smartphones, tablets, and wearable devices. It is impossible to measure how much we use technology in different ways each day. Technology is continually improving and reaching more into our lives, and it has had a significant impact in the field of healthcare. Healthcare is one of the few industries where we may be able to exert more control rather than less. Sure there will be the debate about who has our healthcare data and how it is being used, but we soon may be able to have more control of that as well.

In fact, there are many trends in medicine that will give us more control. Some of these interactions allow us to help monitor our own vital healthcare statistics earlier, which may enable us to make changes and alert our healthcare providers before a small problem becomes a more significant and life-threatening issue.

HEALTHCARE WEARABLES

Technology may have increased our leisure-time or removed many of the hardships of physical labor, but there may have been a tradeoff, with a massive rise in diabetes, obesity and cardiovascular problems in the population. This is the reason companies like Google and Apple have made such a strong push to get into the healthcare space. With close to 270 million Americans using some form of mobile or smartphone, there is a real opportunity for healthcare to improve and create better outcomes and lower costs with all this data walking around.

More and more consumers are adopting health

wearables for a variety of reasons. Smartphones and smart watches can monitor an ever-increasing number of crucial, vital health conditions. Some of these conditions include; heart rate, blood pressure, glucose, physical and sleep activity, and most recently, on the latest Apple Watch, you can now perform your own electrocardiograms (EKG) right from your wrist. There are even companies working on incorporating skin sensors into wearables that detect UVA and UVB exposure, valuable information for us Floridians.

The long-term benefits of healthcare wearable devices to society could be miraculous. If individuals could track their medical history throughout their life, collecting information about doctors' visits, claims data and health information gathered from wearable technology, etc.. We as patients could allow healthcare researchers to use that information (through consent) to develop medicines and procedures not only to improve our health but the health of millions of people as well.

Technology is putting more power in the hands of both the patient and healthcare providers. This increase in real-time and macro data that these devices provide will only improve our healthcare outcomes.

TELEMEDICINE

One of the early uses of technology, and still evolving is telemedicine. The terms 'telemedicine' and 'telehealth' can be used to refer to two-way video transmission of healthcare data like electrocardiograms (ECGs). Tele-monitoring can display a variety of vital signs and symptoms remotely. Australia was an early adopter and innovator of this technology as many of their citizens lived in rural areas very far from healthcare facilities.

HEALTHCARE TRANSPORTATION

One of the biggest drains on the healthcare system or poor healthcare outcomes is when low-income or elderly populations cannot get to their doctor's appointments. So, companies like Uber and Lyft are getting into the non-emergency healthcare transportation space. For example, Uber understands that these populations may not have access to smartphones, so they are building in capabilities that do not require an Uber account and notifications can arrive via SMS text message on simple non-smartphones. They are even working on a system for individuals that only have a landline. The system will also allow healthcare providers to book rides for patients and caregivers.

ELECTRONIC HEALTH RECORDS (EHRs)

Recently the government has made another push for the unifying and standardizing of the Electronic Health Record and launched the MyHealthEData initiative. The idea toward truly putting patients first and giving them the control of their health information. The initative is designed to empower patients to control their health data and decide how it will be used but more importantly keeping the data secure. The goal is to allow patients and healthcare providers to view their health information in a single location.

Soon the government will release rules that make clear that providers and health plans must share data with patients in a usable electronic format. With financial pressures on health systems and health insurers the push to finally embrace all the health improvements and costsaving potential capabilities of EHRs.

TRENDING NOW

INNOVATIONS IN HOW WE PURCHASE AND CONSUME OUR FOOD

WRITER PENNY SANFILIPPO & JONNY ALTOBELL – THE UGLY SISTERS AND RENÉE K. QUINN

he world of food is not unlike that of fashion: always on the lookout for "New" and "Happening" which keeps those industries vibrant. We've become a bit jaded though about food trends because in the process, "New" is sometimes just, well, weird (see Trends we will be happy to see die off).

Some of the trends however are truly innovative - and one that is being adopted by our Fort Lauderdale eateries is the concept of "Casual" service. This involves you, the customer, placing your order at a counter and food runner delivering your meal when it's ready. This eliminates the lag between seating/order taking/food delivery of traditional restaurant service. In some cities there are also "Flex Casual" establishments that do offer both: counter service at breakfast and lunch, plus traditional wait service in the evenings.

An enormously popular and evolving innovation/trend is food delivery and home meal kits. The kits are the boxes delivered to your house with preportioned ingredients and step-by-step instructions, guaranteed to make you look like you trained at culinary school. Ranch to table meats and gourmet foodstuffs are available delivered or in brick and mortar stores - Wild Forks Food is the latest, though not the only option in Ft. Lauderdale. And let us not forget Uber Eats and Delivery Dudes, which allow you to have restaurant meals without getting out of your pajamas.

Another trend we can get behind is the "Waste Not" movement which has promoted plastic straw bans in major cities.

Some eateries are using hollow pasta,

besides the old style paper, and one of our friends orders reusable metal straws and gives them as gifts. By the way, when did straws become necessary for the consumption of beverages? We hope the next step is more abandonment of plastics in food service. The use of biodegradable implements and containers has, to this point, been so from a cost perspective.

expensive that it is not feasible

We understand from the National Restaurant Association (the other NRA), that 2019 will see a reunion with carbs. YAY! The focus is on heritage grains and artisanal breads and pasta. Vegetarian and vegan options are becoming much more mainstream, and many of our local burger specialists are serving meatless options - some of which have a plant protein added to mimic the "redness" of meat. We personally think that's a pretty odd feature to offer someone who chooses NOT to eat animals but presume it's supposed to "transition" carnivores. In fact, the whole "cell- cultured" vegan meat/fish scene brings to mind sci-fi movies. But no doubt, a trend that will needfully continue (just wish the name was more appealing).

Trends we love (and want to find here):

1) More chic donuts. And not just new sweet flavors, but some savory fillings as well. We are thankful that Las Olas doesn't have a Mojo donuts branch, so our clothes still fit. 2) Chick peas rule -in recipes as meat extenders or puréed, shaped, and fried like French fries. And please keep trying new twists on hummus.

What could be bad? 3) Avocado toast is featured more and more – and not just at breakfast. But some of it is seriously priced. This is supposed to be humble fare. 4) Beautiful plates, cups and bowls, sometimes ceramic. Food service pieces don't have to be ugly or institutional. However, we draw the line at using shovels for service (yep, it's been done).

Trends we will be happy to see die off:

1) Mediocre food served in bowls passing as "healthy". 2) Junk food (think hot Cheetos) as addins from everything to Mac and Cheese topping to sushi rolls. 3) We have only read about this – and have thankfully not seen it here - Broccoli Coffee. Yep, in Australia they decided to get more veggies in the day's diet by adding powdered broccoli to coffee.

So to the Restaurateurs of Fort Lauderdale - good luck in the coming year – keeping up with the "fashion" of food is serious business.

Innovated Infusions:

Trends we will experience in cocktails will bring us back to fresh ingredients and fruit infusions. Mocktails will get grown up flavors and presentations. We popped in Del Frisco's Grille, at their modern stylish cocktail bar on Las Olas, while researching new trends. There are two cocktails that stood out, based on flavor and uniqueness.

Instead of a traditional martini, try The VIP. It is an infusion of clementines and vodka blended with golden pineapple, served chilled straight up in a martini glass with a lemon twist. This is a deceptively simple libation that delivers complex flavor notes.

Fruit & Flowers is a creative combination of vodka with elderflower liqueur and blueberry syrup and topped with sparkling grapefruit soda, served with a sugar rock candy garnish that changes the taste and color of the cocktail. It is fragrant to sip. @ t's time to paint the town green! On Saturday, March 16, the Fort Lauderdale St. Patrick's Parade and Festival marches into downtown featuring fun and excitement for the entire family!

ST. PATRICK'S PARADE AND FESTIVAL RETURNS ON MARCH 16!

The free event has grown into one of Fort Lauderdale's largest and most anticipated festivals, attracting thousands of spectators for a one-of-a-kind celebration of all things Irish. This year's event promises to be bigger and better than ever, highlighted by a colorful parade, live music, exciting activities and great entertainment.

The pageantry and excitement kicks off at Huizenga Plaza (Las Olas and Andrews Avenue) at 7 a.m. with the Shamrock Run, a 4-mile trek down Las Olas Boulevard and through adjacent neighborhoods. The Shamrock 4-Miler will be immediately followed by a series of "Lucky Little Leprechaun Dashes" for kids. To register, visit www.shamrock-run.com.

Festivities will continue throughout the morning with live music and entertainment, and plenty of fun and games for the kids. The official welcome from Fort Lauderdale Mayor Dean J. Trantalis will take place at 11 a.m. on the Huizenga Plaza stage, followed by a traditional Irish Blessing. Then, it's time for the largest St. Patrick's Parade in South Florida.

The St. Patrick's Parade begins at noon and travels west along Las Olas Boulevard from S.E. 5 Avenue through the heart of downtown Fort Lauderdale. The colorful parade will feature more than 100 decorative floats, pipe and drum corps, classic automobiles, bagpipers, marching bands, Irish dancers, street performers, scout troops, local sports teams, Veterans groups, and much more!

Following the parade, stick around for the St. Patrick's Festival, which runs until 7 p.m. at Huizenga Plaza and along the Riverwalk. Highlights will include live bands, Irish dancers, interactive entertainment, cultural attractions and an expanded Kids Zone featuring bounce houses, gigantic slides, pony rides, a trackless train, face painting, a petting zoo and mechanical rides. Featured performers will include the Celtic Sounds with Johnnie D, Kelly Academy of Irish Dance, the Fineans, Aranmore Academy of Irish Dance, Celtic Bridge, Drake School of Irish Dance and more.

At 6 p.m., get ready for the ultimate U2 experience as the City of Fort Lauderdale welcomes U2BYUV to the St. Patrick's Festival for a return engagement! Led by front man Michael Schmidt, this nationally acclaimed group will leave fans speechless with their honest, authentic performances. The band's intense, action-packed sets feature U2 favorites ranging from the early days of "Boy" to "Songs of Innocence" and everything in between.

Highlights of the day's festivities will also include exhibitor booths, arts and crafts, souvenirs, and plenty of Irish food and beverages.

Finally, don't miss the best kickoff celebration in town as the City of Fort Lauderdale presents the "Irish Party in Park" on Friday, March 15 from 4 - 7 pm at Huizenga Plaza. The free kickoff event will feature an Irish Happy Hour, live bands, the official introduction of the St. Patrick's Parade Grand Marshal, an event preview, line dancing, the legendary striping of the street, and special appearances by a bagpiper and the "World's Tallest Leprechaun!"

So make plans to arrive early, grab a great viewing spot, and enjoy the best Irish celebration in town! For more information, visit www.stpatsftl.com.
